The respect on the door at once hecame the "observed of all observer, ?" the young ladles present, in particular, watched every motion with the closest attention. As its body slowly writhed and twisted about, its forked tongue and snake yess glistened in the light of the prayer-room, with a malicious envy, we may suppose akin to that with which the serpent in old times gazed upon the happy and pious worshippers in the Garden of Eden. Unlike Eve, her daughters have a mortal dread of snakes. Once, too, self-relying, deceived, beguiled, and ruthed by the wiles of a serpent, they have ever since manifested, at his approach, an invincible repugnance and horror are covered that somsthing was wrong, and the exercises were suspended till a brother: could get a broom and purch the snake off from the top of the door and dispose of it. tha country that they commanded the unbroaded assent of the Senate? There is no satisfactory excuse for their reticence. The expression of their opinions could not have embarrased the negotiation, but I might easily have brought it to a more digit field and becoming terminallon. Why did not they express them?

The probable array to this question involves by far the most discreditable and alarming trait in the character of our jubic mean. We mean servicity to real or a possed popular prejudice. There is unfortunately among certain classes of our people a prejudice against England which is 18 as as the command to the control of the service against the most discreditable. It says:

then the same Buchanan, without authority from Clay, informed General Jackson that Clay would support him for the Presidency, if he would make Clay Secretary of State. In both instances the crooked-looking time-server was guilty of falsehood. And hence Mr. Clay, in he leading organ of the Southern Democracy. The sentiment here expressed by it is afrecious. We are told, that, unless the Government shall silence and punish Sumner and his friends by its farce must stay. The expiration of a term of service makes no matter, there heing no greater than before it. Officers who resign their commissions are forced into the ranks.
